

ABSTRACT

According to one embodiment, a method is disclosed. The method includes storing a first list of hardware registers, receiving video data at an application program, receiving a second list of hardware registers from a device driver, determining whether the first list of hardware registers matches the second list of hardware registers, and if so, streaming the video data to a video decoder

200220140052001